Alcumus to host 'cafe' hub

Alcumus is sponsoring the Central Cafe at this year's Health & Safety Event at the NEC.

It will offer a hub at the heart of the event to encourage practitioners, industry experts and the public to come together to discuss challenges facing the sector today.

Experts will be on hand to help visitors gain insight into how to better understand, manage and demonstrate their legal obligations. Alcumus will also be using the event to show how best practice health and safety management can also enhance the wider performance of a business and improve the bottom line by mitigating corporate risk.

New frontiers from JSP

Aerodynamically tested by a Formula One testing firm, the Frontier Cross-Link barrier system from JSP gives stability and performance in a choice of configurations at varying wind velocities to allow maximum wind flow through and around the barriers.

The system is compatible with JSP and other brands of barrier and can be linked to them on any type of terrain.

JSP's SurefootBloc weighted foot cover, which can be used on one or both sides of the foot, and its own-design telescopic stability poles, further boost dependability, while its lockable clips ensure the barriers are tamper proof and secure.

Casella to showcase latest products

Dust and noise measuring and monitoring equipment specialist Casella will be exhibiting its latest products at The Health & Safety Event 2014 in March.

Stand C36 will demonstrate the Microdust Pro, a tool for protecting employees against preventable industrial diseases. The handheld data logging instrument minimises occupational health risks by enabling real-time detection of air-borne dusts, fumes and aerosols.

Casella will also be showing its full range of products at the event, which takes place on 11–13 March at The NEC, Birmingham.

Nuclear industry event

More than 200 decommissioning leaders are set to attend TotalDECOM on 8–9 April at the Hilton, Glasgow.

Representatives from the global decommissioning, remediation and waste management services, including nuclear, oil and gas, process and defence industries, will engage in a forum that brings together all sectors and elements of the decommissioning industry and its supply chain.

The Nuclear Decommissioning Authority, which runs Sellafield sites, and the Nuclear Industry Association have officially endorsed the event. The keynote conference on day one will cover high profile industry strategy regulation and finance on an international scale.
